

This is round three for me with a motion to adjust child support as a result of a child being emancipated. I file the motion immediately subsequent to the child being emancipated only to have a scheduled court date months beyond the emancipation date. The result is my continued payment of support for a child emancipated for the time frame beyond the emancipation date with apparently no means to recover the over payment.

Is there a vehicle in place for one to recover these over payments, both current and completed in previous years?

Thank you.
